

THANK YOU!

75 years of innovation

It has been a long way from where it all began 75 years ago, immediately after the end of the Second World War, to the high-tech system supplier for precision grinding machines, corrugated board converting lines and precision tools of today. The companies' philosophy is always a question of redefining the limits of what is technically feasible and thus continuously developing the industry standard. The entrepreneur Wilhelm Bahmüller founded the identically named company in 1945, initially as a small workshop for mechanical services in Plüderhausen in the Rems-Murr area, near Stuttgart. In the first years, repairs and maintenance were the basis of the company's business. In 1949, the construction of a circular shear for the processing of corrugated board blanks laid the foundation for further products in the corrugated board converting sector.

At the end of the 1950s, BAHMUELLER developed for the first time grid hinges, for which a patent was registered and thus considerably accelerated the future development of the company. At the beginning of the 1960s the production of precision tools was started. Almost at the same time BAHMUELLER expanded in another business area with the start of job order production and designing precision cylindrical grinding machines for the Stuttgart-based company Fortuna. A few years later BAHMUELLER acquired design documents for automatic folding and stapling machines from the Essen-based company Krupp and thus accelerated the further development of corrugated board converting machines. In the following years the entire product range was continuously expanded.

75 years later BAHMUELLER is one of the absolute market and technology leaders worldwide in its three highly specialized business segments. Especially in the field of precision grinding machines for the automotive industry, fully automatic production systems for the corrugated board converting industry and in the segment of tool holders for automatic machine centers, BAHMUELLER has established a strong international market position in recent years.

According to our guiding principle "Invest in Success" we are proud to make our customers even more successful in their markets with innovations from BAHMUELLER.. Due to constantly new challenges and requirements on customer side, we have always been challenged to make the company BAHMUELLER "Fit for Future". Together with our customers we have achieved a lot and together with them we want to continue to shape a successful future.

On our 75th birthday we would like to say THANK YOU to our customers for the joint an challenging innovations and the confidence they put on us!
